Greenwood begins work on ridgeline development regs

By MICHAEL DANIELS

After updating Greenwood's Subdivision Ordinance and developing a new Site Plan Ordinance the town's Comprehensive Plan Implementation Committee is bracing itself to tackle ridgeline development. It's expected to be a challenging exercise, in part because of the decidedly mixed feelings such regulations stir up, and also of the numerous variables that apply in ridgeline situations.

The committee met last week to begin its work, and left the meeting with more than 50 pages of highly detailed homework.

The material, assembled by Town Manager Kim Sparks, includes a sampling of ridgeline regulations that have been adopted in other areas of the country, including Lyme, N.H. and Stowe, Vt.

Any ridgeline regulations developed by the committee are likely to be included in a revised version of the town's Land Use Ordinance.

Up on the ridges you may pay per view, but just how much?

The increasing number of ridgeline homes has prompted debate about the impact on the viewscape.

But, from another perspective, what about the impact of the view on the assessed value of a ridgeline home?

In New Hampshire, assessors employ a formula to factor in the view in arriving at a property value. A view of a well-known mountain, for instance, or a 180-degree panoramic view rather than a 45-degree one can boost valuations. Assessors even have a view manual to guide them.

But in western Maine, say some local assessors, the impact of a view is an indirect one.

"The view drives the market price up, which in turn would increase the assessed value," said Wade Rainey, Beth-

Misdial E-911 and the police will still turn up at your door

By ALISON ALOISIO

The holiday season, and the added stress it brings, is upon us. It's the time of year when domestic violence incidents increase, making the holidays a busy time for police and other law enforcement officials.

It's made even busier when someone dials 911 by mistake. Residents may be surprised to learn that even if they call the number inadvertently, it will likely still result in a visit from a police officer.

The circumstances

In a hurry to make a phone call, you might have hit 911 on speed dial, or perhaps you meant to dial 411. Or maybe your 5-year-old was playing with the phone.

When you, or your child realize the error, you might just hang up. Or you might stay on the line long enough to talk to an Oxford County dispatcher Hangups add to workload during busy holiday season.

New WMNF plan calls for expanded wilderness, maintaining ban on ATVs

AP/MICHAEL DANIELS

After nearly a decade of planning, the White Mountain National Forest will soon have a new management plan, one that calls for expanding wilderness areas and keeping logging at roughly its current level.

The 15-year plan for the 800,000-acre forest also continues to prohibit the use of all-terrain vehicles, except on designated winter trails and on open roads where they meet state motor vehicle standards. ATV groups had been pushing for summer trails.

Though the plan issued Friday reduces the amount of timber that can be harvested each year from 35 million board feet to 24 million board feet, officials said the reduced amount still is higher than what is typically harvested. Logging interests wanted to maintain the current limit.

Some conservation groups, meanwhile, pushed to have as many as 100,000 additional acres to be added to the 114,000 acres designed as wilderness areas. The new plan calls for designating about 34,500 acres as wilderness areas that can not be developed in any way.

The Forest Service held more than 100 public meetings and collected more than 6,000 written comments about the plan since it began the updating process in 1997. Under the final proposal, 47 percent of the forest could be used for campgrounds, trails, ski areas, snowmobiles and other high-impact activities. "Dispersed recreation," such as snowshoeing, cross-country skiing and hiking, would be protected in 53 percent of the forest.

Most of those who participated got something they wanted, said Charlie Niebling of the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests.

"The nature of public land management is fundamentally one of compromise," he said. "You've got to strike a balance."

That's what the new plan represents, said New Hampshire's

Local forest staffers pitch in with Katrina relief

By PAT NASTA/USFS

Responding to the call for help after Hurricane Katrina, 40 U.S. Forest Service employees with the White Mountain National Forest were dispatched to the devastated areas and evacuee shelters of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Texas.

Several local employees recently returned from their recovery assignments in the South and have stories to share of their experiences.

Jay Milot of Gilead went to San Antonio as crew boss for the 20-person crew assigned to support evacuees in the San Antonio shelter.

Milot took the many varied tasks in stride, saying that the crew left home with open minds and were willing to do whatever they could to help the evacuees.

In addition to the construction projects necessary for shelter operations, the crew worked closely with FEMA and the Red Cross in registering evacuees, receiving and distributing food, water, and clothing.

The evacuees were of all ages and had varied needs, with the Forest Service crew lending a hand to help elderly and disabled people navigate through the shelter.

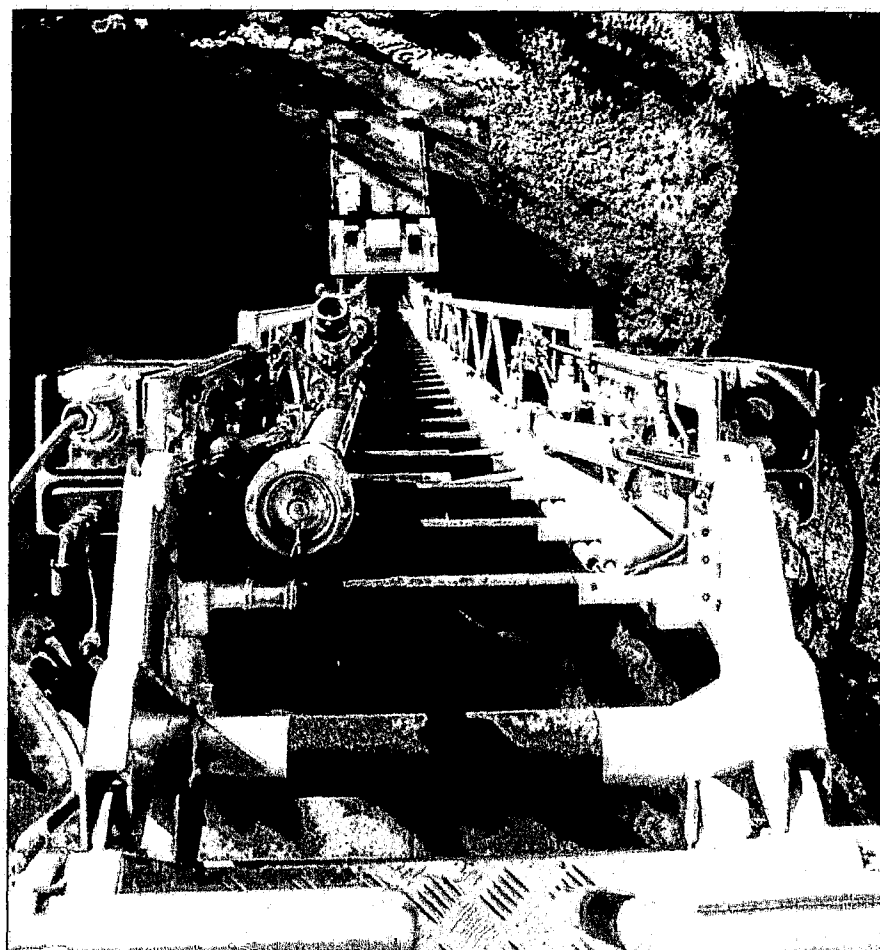

They provided security and were on hand to unload when the Mexican Army appeared with truckloads of blankets and water for their American neighbors in need.

BRIDGE PATHWAY ON PRIVATE LAND

To the Editor:

A surveyor once told me that when an existing road was relocated to a different site, the old roadbed reverted ownership back to the original landowner. After all, he had had it taken from him originally. This said, how is it that the new pathway bridge, which everyone is so pleased with, was built on property that did not belong to the state or town? I'm referring to the Murphy land that has been in their family since the early '40s.

At some point in time, Pat Murphy gave the town a right of way to have access to the sewer system that was on this land. No one suggested then that he didn't own the land! No one questioned his ownership when he paid taxes on said property, which was outlined on the town maps.

Then, along came the snowmobile club, and, lo and behold, they decide that their bridge should cross the river right beside the existing bridge. They found a way to acquire this land by hiring lawyers to find a loophole in the law. They decided that they'd call this property abandoned property which they then had the right to take. And take, they did. There was no mention of compensation to the Murphys. How ridiculous is that? The old road was no more and went nowhere. The property belonged to the Murphys.

The other side of this coin is the human side. What matter does it make that a family lives in that house with the beautiful lawns, and that trees that were planted years ago by the Murphys were to be chopped down? What does it matter that an elderly lady of 101 years has to watch this injustice and feel completely helpless? How about the hard labor and costly renovations that are going on to preserve this fine, old, historic house? There's a sense of futility when you realize your dreams and efforts have been trampled on with no regard to personal feelings or injustices. Do you think now that, maybe, it was a bad investment in time and money and commitment for the family? After all, the beautiful front lawn is no more. Privacy is a word not used to describe this place now. The public has access 24/7 to walk, drive machines, etc., across the driveway and front yard.

I wonder how many citizens of Bethel would like to have this pathway going across their front steps? Do you suppose that there will be an issue of litter? Who is going to control that? Who is going to control the pathway as it crosses the Murphy's driveway? (By the way, Paving their driveway was in their plans a long time ago, and it was done entirely by their funds. They have received nothing in compensation for this property that was taken from them.) The driveway is treacherous enough on its own, and now another threat of danger (especially in the wintertime) had been added. How long before someone gets hurt there? How about the care the public shows to anyone's property? An engineer of the M.D.O.T. was seen relieving himself on the Murphy's lawn — in broad daylight! Is that an indicator of what's to come?

I've been reading about Wal-Mart taking land for new shopping malls, but for this ugly wheel of greed to roll across Bethel is shameful. If it can happen to this family, it can happen to anyone. Beware!

Davene Mitchell
Ocala, Fla.

(Editor's note: MDOT maintains that the land in question belongs to the state. The following is an excerpt from a Dec. 30, 2003 letter to the James and Marjorie Murphy from MDOT Legal Administrator Amy Hughes. That position was reiterated in a May 25, 2004 letter from Commissioner David Cole.

Hughes wrote: "We have researched the question of ownership of the old road and concluded that the State of Maine, through the Department of Transportation ("MaineDOT"), owns the fee interest in the west half of the discontinued road that abuts Route 2. We reached this conclusion in 1971, and by the actions of your predecessor in title, R. Glenn Murphy, in conveying all of the property on the west side of the county road to Ernest Blake and [Frank Lowell] in 1959.

"With regard to your view that ownership of the westerly half of the old county road passed to you (or your predecessor in title) through a transfer by MaineDOT, our search at the Oxford (East) County Registry of Deeds revealed no helpful information. I understand that you may have had a discussion with a representative of MaineDOT in 1995 concerning the status of the old county road but I've not been able to find anyone there who was involved in the Bethel Station transaction which you referred to in your letter, and therefore it may be helpful if you could contact Anthony Ferguson to request copies of documents related to the legal details you indicate were discussed.

"I apologize for the confusion that may have resulted from your previous conversation with a member of this office. Certainly if you have any evidence that would indicate that the ownership of the subject portion of the road is otherwise, we would be happy to consider it, but in light of our review of the facts and relevant history, we continue to maintain that MaineDOT owns that half of the discontinued county road between the east boundary of Route 2 and the centerline of the discontinued road."

Thanks again. See you next year.

REMEMBERING DAISY LeCLAIR AND WILLARD WIGHT

To the Editor:

The Bethel Historical Society has lost two of its most dedicated and loyal members with the recent deaths of Daisy LeClair and Willard Wight.

Daisy LeClair, always gracious and kind, was one of the most enthusiastic of members, who took great pride in the progress of the society through the years. She was especially helpful when my mother was working on the history of the street where Daisy spent most of her life, Bethel's Philbrook Street. Her memory was keen and she greatly enhanced our knowledge of that section of town. She was also a valued resource for our other research projects from time to time. Her support of the organization both informational and financial was invariably generous and deeply appreciated by all of us at the society.

Bill Wight was with us for so many years as a volunteer, trustee, committee member and great supporter of the society that it is hard to believe he has left us. He and his wife, Sylvia, were two of the most reliable "pillars" of the organization for so very long. They were involved in many of the activities of the society for the past thirty years until ill health began to curtail their participation. Until recent times, there was seldom a society event that they were not present at or/and helping in some way. It was particularly regrettable that Bill was not able to attend the oral history panel discussion in observance of Newry's bicentenary held earlier this month at the Dr. Moses Mason Meeting Room. Bill was a genial, kind, generous, wise and very active man, who was dedicated to his community and region. We will long remember his service to the society and what an inspiration he was to all of us as a role model for the quintessential historical society member.

TIME TO THANK GOD

To the Editor:

It is time for my favorite holiday of the year. Thanksgiving is a time for family and friends to gather around the table for a special meal to give thanks for all the blessings that have enriched their lives. There are no gifts, few decorations and no outrageous costs for this holiday.

The question is: to whom are we giving thanks? Are we to give thanks to Sears? Are we going to give thanks to Wal-Mart? Are we to thank the ACLU for protecting us from ourselves? Or are we to do something absolutely unacceptable today? Give thanks to God for any and all of the blessings that surround each and every one of us just by living in America? I would suggest that it would be God.

We were all taught in school that the pilgrims founded the holiday to give thanks to God for helping them get through the hardships of the new world. I have no reason to doubt that. They left the old world in order to gain religious freedom.

Now, in a country that is about 85 percent Christian, we are forbidden to celebrate any of our holidays with the suggestion that there might be a connection to God. I do not see the ACLU attacking any other religion other than the religion of Christianity. It is true that we are allowed to celebrate privately but there can be no mention of God in the public square.

We are not allowed to show a cross, a manger, or mention God in our writings, in our public buildings or even on our coins. There are people who want God to be taken out of our world completely. That is pretty difficult to understand while living in a country that has overwhelmingly been blessed by God.

The secularists have been successful in removing God from our schools, our public debate and they have also terrified the world of business by making them afraid to even mention the word God or Christmas.

Happy Holidays is what they say now so as not to offend the 15 percent of the country that is not Christian. I have wished my friends and family and just about anybody else I have come in contact with "Merry Christmas" as I have done for 63 years. I have not done it in order to make anyone uncomfortable but rather to wish them joy and peace in the unique international holiday celebrated by millions and millions of people.

It will probably be difficult to do, but it is my intention to do as little shopping in stores that refuse to recognize Christmas. If I find myself in a store that is obviously refusing to recognize Christmas, I will go somewhere else. While watching television last night, I was pleased to see that the True-Value stores are pointedly making it the Christmas season. Amongst my favorite places to shop and buy is Home Depot. They are wishing us to buy their products for the "Holiday Season." Sears, Wal-Mart and so many others are doing the same thing.

I know that there will come a time when I have to shop at all of these stores but I will do everything I can not to shop them during the Christmas gift-buying season. If Santa, and Christ and all things absolutely Christmas, are unacceptable to them, they are unacceptable to me.

I am not a Christian that spends his day on bended knee pounding my breast in never-ending mea culpa after mea culpa. I am an American who thanks God for the most noble experiment in the history of mankind, the United States of America.

To all who read this and to all I may come in contact with, I wish you all a merry Christmas, happy Chanukah and a blessed holiday season no matter what your belief might be.

PLEASE RETURN THE TORO

To the Editor:

Living in a small Maine town it is easy to take for granted the sense of security and community fellowship. Neighbors help each other, and often tools and other items are borrowed from each other, sometimes without explicit permission.

We have a small house in the Nordic Knoll development across from the "Letter S" swimming hole beyond the Sunday River covered bridge.

Recently someone "borrowed" our Toro lawnmower from beneath our screened-in porch, and I am hoping it will be returned. No questions will be asked. After all, isn't that what community is all about?

Ridgelines

a little bit shorter than the 166-page zoning manual for Stowe.

"It's one page," said Sparks.

"Most towns are at least 15."

The ordinance is also out of date, having last been revised nearly 20 years ago.

"It hasn't been looked at in a long time," said Selectman Wayne Hakala.

Town residents' desire for some form of control over ridgeline development was apparent in a survey conducted in preparation for the town's new Comprehensive Plan, which was approved by voters in 2003.

"People want to preserve the views we have. They like the town the way it looks," said Alan Hamilton, co-chair of the implementation committee.

And the appearance of large houses on nearby slopes in Bethel and Woodstock led to many Greenwood residents calling for some form of control.

"They really got people riled up," said Code Enforcement Officer John Gauthier.

No one on the committee appears to expect the process of developing those regulations to be easy, especially when it comes to balancing property rights against community aesthetics.

People who can afford to build on ridgelines "deserve the view and should have the view," Hamilton said, "but you also don't have to spoil the view."

The next step for the committee will be to meet again in early December, and attempt to come up with a list of questions for a second survey, this one intended to ascertain the views of residents on the specific issue of ridgeline development.

If a proposed ordinance can be completed, it is expected to be presented to voters at Town Meeting in March.

el's assessing agent. "Market value is the key factor in assessing property of all types."

Donna Hays, who assesses properties in Newry, agrees.

"I don't put a view factor on properties, I assess for location and neighborhood. View factors are hard to keep on top of — some properties have views only in the fall and winter, depending on their location."

"I use the sales to arrive at the assessed values. For instance, if you look at Powder

Ridge [a Newry development] you can see that the sales increase as you go up, and if you were to plot these sales on the tax map it becomes evident that location is a factor in the sales price.

"If you use the sales to arrive at your values you have something concrete to show how your assessments reflect both location and neighborhood."

John O'Donnell of O'Donnell Associates is the assessing agent for Woodstock and Greenwood.

O'Donnell said he considers the view as one of many factors in his assessments. "It's a qualitative factor," he said.

The factors affecting property values are all interconnected, he said.

"We have an obligation to consider all factors that may affect the values, positive or negative."

Assessors and appraisers, he said, don't get to pick and choose which factors they want to consider.

Plan

two congressmen.

I think they've really balanced the whole concept of multi-use," said U.S. Rep. Jeb Bradley.

Rep. Charles Bass said he was impressed both by the plan and the respect for the process shown even by those who disagreed with the outcome.

Perhaps the most unhappy with the plan are ATV users. Jim Bird, chairman of a legislative committee studying off-road vehicle use, called the decision to exclude ATVs "The tyranny of the majority." He hopes trails will be allowed to connect existing trails to a newly approved ATV park in Berlin.

"We'd like to think that the door is not closed on having connecting trails," he said. "We're not demanding anything, it just makes sense."

Niebling said the Forest Society supported the decision because of the management challenges ATV pose and the way they change the character of land use.

"It makes sense," he said. "The White Mountains are really known throughout New England as a real refuge from noise, from urban living."

AMC also pleased

The Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC) has also applauded the Forest Service for issuing the new.

"The AMC commends the U.S. Forest Service for the extensive work it has put into developing the new management plan for this multiple-use forest, and for actively seeking public involvement and considering the views expressed by thousands of forest users throughout the planning process," said Susan Arnold, director of conservation for the AMC, the nation's oldest conservation and recreation organization.

"Following an initial review of the plan ... we are pleased to see new Wilderness areas proposed for the national forest. New Wilderness designation for the Wild River Valley and the Sandwich Range will provide outstanding opportunities for backcountry recreation and the chance, over time, to restore unfragmented, mature forest habitat.

"We look forward to working with our Congressional representatives to help pass a New Hampshire Wilderness Bill in the United States Congress," Arnold said. Congressional representatives are expected to propose legislation providing new WMNF Wilderness in the coming months.

"We also commend the Forest Service for maintaining its existing ban on all-terrain vehicles in the White Mountain National Forest in its new forest management plan," Arnold said.

"Given the noise, pollution, and erosion these vehicles cause, and the Forest Service's lack of resources to police their use, ATV use is clearly inappropriate in the national forest."

The new plan is expected to be filed with the Federal Registry on Friday, Nov. 25. It will Milot, a fisheries technician and wildland firefighter with the White Mountain National Forest, came home with the conclusion that of all the assignments he's had with the Forest Service, helping the evacuees in San Antonio was the most important because he was able to make a difference and make things better for those who lost everything.

Lesley Rowse

Lesley Rowse of Albany Township, was dispatched to Hattiesburg, Miss., located about 60 miles north of Gulfport.

Rowse was expecting to put her organizational skills to work dealing with tons of supplies in a receiving and distribution center, but quickly was recruited for a very different task.

She instead found herself assigned to a team charged with operating a camp in support of Humane Society volunteers as well as personnel from the Air National Guard.

The camp was actually set up in a large fairgrounds and housed about 300 people.

Rowse, a wildlife biologist, supported Humane Society volunteers and the rescued animals they cared for.

They had about 1,400 animals come through the shelter in the course of two weeks. "We had every kind of dog you can imagine, as well as hundreds of cats, some horses, goats, pot-bellied pigs, and one baby squirrel," Rowse said.

Her tasks revolved around managing the camp, delivering water and ice to the volunteers, and of course finding some time along the way to offer an ear-scratch and kind words to the disoriented animals.

The animal shelter was staffed with veterinary personnel who checked the animals as they arrived and treated them for a variety of ailments.

Each animal received a computer chip with identifying information and had their photos posted on the Internet to help their families find them.

No pets were adopted out right away — the focus of the mission was to care for the animals, either in a shelter or in foster homes, until their owners could claim them.

"A bell would ring in the shelter every time a pet and its human were reunited," said Rowse.

"We had several bells each day, but not enough."

All of the animals were eventually sent to shelters across the country, and Rowse remained in the South to break down the camp and set up distribution points to store supplies for future needs.

Randy Harrington

As usual this past summer, Randy Harrington of Bethel made himself available for fire suppression duty if help in the fire-prone western national forests was needed.

But this year, instead of heading west in the familiar role of firefighter, he and his crew were called south to assist Katrina evacuees in San Antonio, Texas.

He went as a squad boss, meaning that whatever tasks his crew was assigned, he would have the extra responsibility of supervising and maintaining safety for his five crew members.

Squad boss is a position in the "Incident Command System," an organizational structure in which Forest Service emergency response teams operate.

It provides a chain of command and clear roles and responsibilities for everyone involved. "It's necessary in a time of crisis to know who is in charge and what is expected of each person," said Harrington, who has fought wildfires with the Forest Service for 11 years.

He also served on the Newry Volunteer Fire Department for 15 years and the Bethel Fire Department for 13 years.

After arrival in San Antonio, Harrington found that his crew's mission was one of "helping people meet their basic needs."

He worked construction in the shelter, ordered and shuttled supplies, provided childcare, helped evacuees understand the FEMA services that were available to them, and did whatever was necessary to keep the shelter running smoothly every day.

The long days were busy and full of small moments that formed lasting memories.

Harrington recalled one mother and her young son in need of clothing during a time when the shelter's clothing supply room was closed.

Having a young son himself at home, Harrington related to the boy's needs and found a way to open the room and get some kid-sized new clothing to brightened the boy's day.

Harrington spent time during the daycare center and was happy to be able to interact with the children.

"The kids adapted pretty well, although it was clearly a tough time for them. We were able to provide some fun and attention, and they responded by acting like typical kids," Harrington said.

The daycare provided parents the needed time to deal with the terrible upheaval in their lives, he said, and many of the evacuees he talked to had a positive attitude after such a life-changing experience.

Also memorable was working side-by-side with the Mexican soldiers, just miles from the Alamo, where rebellious Texans were defeated by the Mexican Army in 1836.

This was a historic visit for the Mexican Army, who last operated in the United States in 1846 at the start of the Mexican-American War. This time their mission was humanitarian and their convoy carried nurses, doctors, and engineers.

Harrington, a lead forest technician with the WMNF, took the different culture in stride, saying his crew of "country boys in the middle of a big city" handled whatever came their way and quickly gained a reputation for getting things done.

They stayed aware of safety issues and dealt with the expected tensions that come with so many people thrown together under devastating circumstances.

The training and experience they came with served them well, with the crew returning home safe and tired but feeling satisfied that they made a difference. "I met a lot of great people and I'd go back in a minute," said Harrington.

WMNF employees trained in wildland firefighting find that their skills are useful in responding to other emergencies as well.

They were dispatched to New York immediately following the 9/11 terrorist attacks, to Texas to help search the remote landscape for pieces of the Columbia space shuttle.

Calls

and explain that it was an accidental call.

Either way, the dispatcher will talk with you to try to find out what happened (he/she can call back because the phone number is displayed on the 9-11 screen). And even if you insist the call was an error, you will most likely still find the nearest county deputy or town police officer on your doorstep.

That's because in many cases, there is no way for the dispatcher to know for sure if it was an honest error — or if someone is standing next to you threatening you if you tell what is really going on.

"Hang-up calls may be because another person cut the call short because they don't want police to respond," said Jim Davis, chief deputy for the Oxford County Sheriff's Department.

"We require that officers respond because you can never be sure if an emergency exists or not until you have a face-to-face [conversation] with the caller to confirm that an emergency does not exist," he said.

Davis said the Oxford County Regional Communications Center receives about 120 911 hangup calls a month.

Of those, about 20 percent are true emergencies.

If the dispatcher does make contact with the caller and is told the call was a mistake, the dispatcher may tell the person to expect a visit from an officer, said Bethel Police Chief Alan Carr. Or sometimes the officer shows up without prior notification.

A common reaction from residents is, said Carr, "I didn't mean to call you all the way out here for that." But nine times out of 10, we're going to check it out. We just want to make sure everyone is safe."

To avoid calling officers all the way out to your home for nothing, "be more cognizant of the numbers you're pressing on the phone," said Carr. And, he said, make sure children understand that 911 should only be dialed in a true emergency.

Note: Three incidents of 911 hangup calls appear in the Bethel Police Log this week (page 3).

Cake in a Cup Mix

Great for college students...a sweet treat anytime. Try different combinations to get your favorite flavors

18 1/2 oz box chocolate cake mix
3 1/2 oz pkg instant chocolate pudding mix
3 cups powdered sugar, divided
4 1/2 tbsp hot cocoa mix, divided
2 1/4 tsp vanilla powder, divided

Place dry cake mix and pudding in a large mixing bowl, mix together. Divide and place half cup mix in 8 plastic sandwich bags, secure. Tuck one bag in a large mug that will hold at least 1 to 1 and a half cups of water. Because the cake is microwaved, be sure the cup doesn't have any metal decoration on it. Place 1/3 cup powdered sugar, 1 and a half teaspoons hot cocoa mix and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla powder into plastic sandwich bags, secure with a twist tie and attach to cake bag labeling as glaze mix. Place one bag of cake and glaze mix in each mug and attach the following directions to mix; Generously spray inside of coffee mug with non-stick vegetable spray. Empty contents of cake mix bag into each mug and add one egg white, one tablespoon oil, and one tablespoon water. Mix until well blended. Microwave on high for 2 minutes. While cake is baking, place glaze mix into a small mixing bowl and add 1 and a half teaspoons water, mix well. When cake is done, pour glaze over cake in the cup and enjoy while warm. Makes 8 to 9 cake mixes.

Martha and Glenn Bangs of Dresden spent the weekend with Bob and Ginny Keniston.

The Red Hat Ladies of Bethel met at the Trolley House in Norway for lunch on Friday. The next meeting will be Dec. 1 for a Breakfast buffet at the Sudbury.

Mayville news

By Donald Bennett

News Flashback: On Dec. 31, 1888, the Androscoggin River covered bridge connecting Mayville with Bethel Hill ceased being a toll bridge. In the Jan. 8, 1889 edition of The Oxford County Democrat, Bethel's correspondent wrote: "The first day of January the outside world rejoiced in the privilege of coming to Bethel Hill without being compelled to pay tribute."

Our temperature Saturday morning, Nov. 19, 2005, was 16 degrees; the first time it has dipped into the teens at our house and in time to make Thanksgiving Week temperatures match the seasonal range.

A Walk on the Bridge: Mayville is flooded with e-mailed news.

Last winter in Florida to celebrate turning 70, I started walking about three miles a day, biked too, but walking is steady exercise in contrast to biking's pump and coast. When I set out to use the new bridge for walking to Rite Aid, I ran into an obstacle. So I e-mailed Stan Howe as head selectman with my complaint. Although I intended to provoke comment, the collection of information returned was indeed very helpful.

The kickoff: my e-mail to Stan Howe: Subject: A walk on the million dollar bridge: "Hi Stan, Does the town government realize that there is no reasonably apparent walking — pedestrian access to the new bridge from my side of the river? How come? Shouldn't Mayville residents and visitors have the same access as the south of the river people?

I try to get in a long walk daily either to Riverside Picnic Area or in the other direction to Rite Aid. Walking from my house to town facing the traffic the new bridge is not accessible unless you walk over newly seeded ground, which has all the signs of a no trespassing area on the Bethel Outdoor Adventure side of the road. Since I am a bridge skeptic to begin with, I think the least that could be done is to extend a walking path from the bridge to Route 2 on the Mayville side. Biking access — egress runs into the same conditions as the walker. If a walker crosses Route 2, walks along the North Road to the BIG parking lot, through the parking lot and then through the field, then and only then, a walking person can walk along the snowmobile road under the bridge. For the $1.5 million spent on this engineering marvel, taking the BIG parking lot route seems awkward. Besides I doubt if the wheelchair people could do it. Don"

Stan replied overnight: "You have put your finger on the next step for the bridge. It gets you across, now where does it go? The trails group led by Kirk Siegel and others would have a better handle than I do as to the progress of where it goes beyond here. Maybe a call to Kirk would give you some idea how things are developing. I know lots of options were being discussed, but have not heard anything recently."

Kirk Siegel's reply came very soon later: "Don Bennett and others in this conversation: The only thing I would add is that our trails committee is happy to receive the sort of input that you've just given. After a broadly distributed community survey over a year ago, a trail forum at Telstar in January of 2005 attended by 75 citizens, and lots of letters to the editor requesting input, we still receive new input on a weekly basis. That's great and this topic is a super example. I am copying John Cheney on this, because John and I crossed paths at a Chamber function last week and had a great discussion on the concept of integrating Mayville into the Bethel village by extending paths in your (northwards) direction. I'm also copying Steve Wight, Newry selectman, trail committee member, and Land Trust president, because a Mayville trail could certainly be part of connection from Bethel to Newry. There are lots of possibilities, whether involving the Route 2 right of way or land of willing landowners. Based on your keen interest, Don, can I assume that you would be interested in working with a group of Mayville folk to explore some of these possibilities? As Jeff notes, our committee has spent hundreds of hours just securing 2,000 feet of access from the end of the new bridge to the North Road. This involved only four landowners, all of whom were supportive, level terrain, and generally ideal conditions. So you can imagine the amount of effort that will be involved.

"As you point out, our effort is reactionary in one sense — we're responding in some part to the fact that this bridge is now here. The bridge was built in large part due to the successful lobbying of the snowmobile community, who have an economic interest and just as important didn't want to see a tragic snowmobile fatality on the old bridge. Those are worthy goals — we're trying to achieve even broader goals. Thanks for your thoughts, and look forward to hearing more from you and the rest of Mayville!"

At about the same time that Kirk's e-mail came in so did the first one of two from Jeff Parsons:

(To save space I have edited Jeff Parson's e-mails into one listing points that Jeff enumerated.)

"... (1) There is at this very moment no continuation of the bridge northwards in any direction. We (the Trails Committee) have in fact obtained permission from landowners in a westwards direction (Parsons, DOT, BIG, Masons) to extend the Pathway west. Back under itself, under Route 2, then out to the North Road via above landowners. That will, de facto, double the length of the pathway.

(2) Moreover, we have just this week finished putting together the grant application for RTP funding to complete that part (westward) of the trail, including paving. We are confident that by next year, that path will exist. It is an exciting next phase.

(3) We (Jeff and Pattie) would welcome that (Mayville Road) continuation. It would need to go from the present end of the path, directly up to our entranceway. At the moment, it looks dicey: it is steep, and crosses newly seeded ground. That is the result of the way the contractors left the project. We have, however, put stakes in the ground trying to indicate that people are welcome to walk across our entrance and down to the path. To make that into a real trail would take a few loads of gravel, a little grading work, and not much else. We would welcome that work. There is, by the way, still time before ground freezing to get it done. Next moves?" (Then Parsons mentioned again progress on extending the under bridge trail.)

FAIR PREPARATIONS—The annual Christmas Fair and Tea will take place at the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel Dec. 3 from 1 to 4 p.m. Among the items featured are Christmas crafts, greens, handmade knitted items and crafts. Here, (from left) Priscella Walker, Peggy Wight, Carol Hatch, Lida Iles and Ruth Silver work on crafts in preparation. Forty percent of the funds raised at the event support the SMILE Fund, which provides financial help for people in need of extensive dental work who cannot afford it. (Photo: A. Aloisio)

(4) The Trails Committee has not spent any time designing or planning that (step linking commercial and residential properties that lie along Mayville Road). Perhaps now is the time. (And, as Kirk Siegel notes above, he has talked with Norseman Inn and motel owner John Cheney whose interest in bridge paths and connections is apparent since they would add value to his lodging and rental properties on Mayville Road as well as those of his neighbors.) If I do nothing else, I will raise the question at the next Trails meeting on

Dec. 9th."

Town Manager Scott Cole also responded with specific answers and comments that seem to round out the bridge situation as of mid-November: "Don Bennett's point raised in an earlier e-mail is valid. The town government has been aware of the 'missing link' since spring when it became clear that the MDOT project would not be sufficiently funded to directly connect Route 2 with the bridge. A decision was made at this office to locally fund the connection to BIG Adventure and leave discussion of a highway connection to a later date.

"There are several reasons for the decision. The under-bridge connection was straightforward. However, connecting Route 2 is more complicated than dumping a few loads of gravel. How to handle the highway guardrail, the campground's curb cut, drainage concerns, compliance w/ both access standards and highway standards, possible lack of right of way, and a potential sewer extension toward Mayville-Riverview-Sunday River are all factors that need to be considered prior to a commitment of funds. And then the money question itself needs to be resolved — state? local? private? combination?

"Elimination of the 'missing link' is on the list for discussion in next year's town and sewer budgets. However, it's too early to say whether or not the work can even be done in 2006. Ideally the work will be done in 2006 but even now, it is not certain. Thanks for the opportunity to comment. Scott Cole, Bethel Town Manager"

Those interested in attending the December meeting of the trails committee should call Jeff Parsons (824-4224 at Bethel Outdoor Adventure) to make sure of date, time and place of the meeting. The outcome of these discussions bodes well for the business and residence owners living within range of the bridge. For instance the walking distance from the Mayville end of the bridge to Timberlake's Home Store showroom is less than 600 yards. It is only one-half mile, 880 yards, to The Quilt Shop. Since receiving Jeff's reassurance that walkers can follow his stakes from bridge to roadway (and not be arrested), I have walked that route a number of times. It is a very pleasant improvement over walking across the river on the highway bridge.

The Way I See It

It's that time of the year again when we feast upon the turkey and all the fixings of a traditional Thanksgiving Day dinner. It's that time of the year when, as the holiday suggests, we should pause and do a mental inventory of what we have to be thankful for.

It always amazes me when I reflect over the past year, a year in which I spent a lot of time groaning and moaning over everything that didn't go my way, just how much I do have to be thankful for. There are, of course, the obvious, family, friends, health, a roof over my head and all that good stuff. But when I really stop to think about it, there is so much more.

For example, I'm thankful that I'm not Julia Roberts. It may seem that she has a charmed life, but I'm not so sure that is the case. Sure, she's beautiful and rich, but the poor girl can't go to dinner or shopping or even to the gym without someone spying on her and trying to take her picture in the most unflattering positions.

Can you imagine what it's like to be working out, huffing and puffing with sweat dripping off the end of your nose and have some schmuck with a camera take your picture — a picture that will end up on the front page of all the gossip magazines?

I'm really thankful that I'm not a politician and have to vote on the budget. That is a no-win situation. Everything is such a mess and there are programs that are important that will be cut and make a lot of people angry. There are other programs that probably shouldn't even be part of the budget that won't get cut and that will make a lot of other people angry.

No matter what my opinion, no one will try to wine and dine me or try buy my vote on this issue. This is the part of the system I don't like. Some politicians will even hold their vote hostage, demanding special interest favors to be heaped upon them no matter how they really feel about any of the budget items. Something is very wrong with this system and I am truly thankful that I'm not part of it.

... we should pause and do a mental inventory of what we have to be thankful for.

I'm thankful that I'm not the president of the United States. I don't understand why people go to such great lengths to get this job. It's a real no-winner. No matter how good you are at it, your ability is always subjected to someone else's opinion. You're darned if you do and you're darned if you don't on just about every issue.

The hours aren't very good either. The president doesn't exactly have a 9-to-5, Monday through Friday kind of job. He's always on call no matter what. I can just see myself getting up at 2 a.m. to answer the red hotline and make a decision that will affect the whole world without even getting a cup of coffee into me.

It's a job that doesn't allow for a lot of mistakes either. If I screw up on my job there's little harm done and I can always blame it on the computer. But let the president screw up and the next thing you know the country's in a confrontation with a hostile nation or the economy goes to hell in and hand basket. No thanks!

I'm thankful for the existence of modern appliances. I will never be considered a domestic Goddess — I don't like housework and I'm not very good at it. If I didn't have some of the appliances that I have I'd never get anything done around the house. When I think about our foremothers scrubbing their laundry against the rocks down at the creek, I become very thankful that that was then and this is now.

I can only imagine what it was like for my great-great-grandmother to prepare the Thanksgiving feast. No gas or electric stove, no microwave oven, no electric mixer or food processor, no electric anything. Not to mention that great-great-granny didn't have access to such conveniences as canned goods (unless she canned them herself), no packaged mixes, no aluminum foil or even Tupperware. And she probably thought she had a lot to be thankful for.

There are so many other things I'm thankful for, like living in a safe environment, constitutional rights and a good job. These are things that are easy to take for granted unless you don't have them.

So, when you sit down to your Thanksgiving dinner and survey the foodscape that is placed before you, pause before you dig in and give thanks. If you don't think you can be thankful for what you have or who you are, the way I see it, you can at least be thankful for who you're not.

Wishing all of you a very Happy Thanksgiving.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday we accumulated 2.4 inches of rain. Word is that before this is printed, we will have had another two to four inches. It would be so much better for the local economy (and for snow lovers) if it stayed cold and came down as solid white stuff. But we've had a good taste of winter temperatures, with our thermometer registering as low as 19 degrees this past week.

The Country Store reports that the deer count is up to 28. It must have been a good week to add 17 from the week before! There will be a real push this week to bag that stag before closing day on Saturday.

Twenty Red Hat ladies met on Nov. 18 at the Trolley House in Norway for a delightful lunch. We had our own dining room, looking out on Main Street, and each place was set with a small dish of red and purple jellybeans. I sat at a table with June Abbott, Ginny Gamble, Carol Hatch, Lucia Schwarz, and Jan Stowell. Before we left, everyone sang Happy Birthday to Ginny Keniston, whose big day was coming up early this week.

Jane Hosterman attended the Senior Citizens, Thanksgiving Dinner on Sunday. The National Honor Society hosts this event every year, and, as always, they did an excellent job. Jane spoke of their genuine hospitality and thoughtfulness. She said that the young people were as kind and sweet as could be. Close to thirty tables of seniors were welcomed by the NHS president, and several attendees won door prizes which had been provided by community businesses and individuals.

We drove over to Rumford on Sunday afternoon to attend a concert by the Franklin County Fiddlers at the beautiful old Rumford Town Hall. This event was sponsored by the Western Maine Senior College as a fundraiser for Hurricane Katrina victims and a friend-raiser for the Senior College. The group comprises Mount Blue High School students who are involved in the music program there. We were especially interested in being there since our granddaughter, Elisabeth Stancioff, a sophomore at Mount Blue, plays the viola in the group. It was toe-tapping, hand-clapping music, with some mellow waltzes thrown in, as well as a couple of impressive solos by some very accomplished young people. A special treat was a clogging performance by an alumna of the Fiddlers and Mount Blue, who just happened to be home for the holiday.

Some of my pies are baked, "to bring" assignments have been handed out, and the linen tablecloth and napkins have been ironed. Now there's just the last-minute shopping and cleaning to do, and a few more make-ahead foods. Thursday the multitudes will assemble for my favorite holiday of the year. We'll be giving thanks for our good fortune in living in beautiful western Maine, for our loving family and friends, for good health, good food, and a comfortable home. And we'll be praying for peace, tolerance, and understanding, both at home and throughout the world. Happy Thanksgiving, everyone!

It is hard to believe that Thanksgiving has arrived already. Everyone I have spoken with is making preparations for the big day. Whether you have dinner at home or go out to eat with friends or family, Thanksgiving is a time to think of all the things we have to be thankful for. Sometimes our daily lives can be so hectic that we forget to stop and give thanks for all the great things we have. All you have to do is look around you and there is always someone who is having problems that are bigger than your own.

We spoke to our son, Chris, and he is making plans to have Thanksgiving Dinner with his girlfriend, Kym. We miss him the most around the holidays, but glad he is doing well in New Mexico. We have plans to get together for Thanksgiving with our other son, Tim, and his family.

My brother, Steve McLain, stopped at the house to visit. While he was there his son, Brad, appeared looking for him. It was nice to visit with Brad since we hadn't seen him for a while. They were making plans for Thanksgiving Dinner.

The West Bethel Children's Center recently had a Grandparents Day. I spent the morning with my grandson, William Chapman, and had a great time. After breakfast and some inside playtime, everyone went outside to play. It was quite an experience to watch about fifteen small children playing in the snow. Congratulations to the staff for keeping everything in order and all of the little ones happy WORLD TRAVELING TRUCK ARRIVES IN NEWRY—The Newry Fire Department's new ladder truck arrived at its new home at the Sunday River Fire Station Sunday. The truck's construction started in Wyoming, moved to Minnesota, went on to Germany to have the ladder installed and then returned to Minnesota for the final completion. The ladder can go from a nested position on the truck to fully extended in one minute. At the 2004 Newry Town Meeting, the town approved $670,000 to purchase the truck. Newry used $120,000 from a capital reserve account and financed the remaining $550,000 over 10 years with the Maine Municipal Bond Bank. The truck has the ability to serve as a pumper, an aerial or both.

most of the time. They did a great job.

This past weekend there was a group of game wardens on Route 2 near the old school house. They were stopping vehicles heading toward New Hampshire. They were looking for hunters that were transporting deer across the state line. There were several more wardens in the parking lot by the school that were checking inside the trucks of the lucky hunters.

Speaking of lucky hunters, Chris Hooper of Gilead shot his first deer, a seven-point buck, this past Saturday. He was hunting with a couple of friends on the North Road.

Dog Licenses: This is just a reminder to all dog owners in Gilead. Dog licenses are due in January, but are available at the office of the clerk now. Notices will be sent out in December. Please call and make an appointment. Also, there is a rabies clinic in Bethel on Saturday, Dec. 3, at the Bethel Fire Station from 2-4 p.m. The fee for the shot is $10.

Planning Board

The Planning Board meeting scheduled for Dec. 1 has been cancelled. Individuals requiring support from the Board should contact Jack Pucak at 836-2729 to make other arrangements.

Andover

by Melinda
Averill

Andover's oldest citizen, Edna White, who has been hospitalized several weeks in Rumford, returned to her home on Nov. 16.

The former Helen Glover has her house on Farmers Hill for sale and has moved to Brownfield.

All 13 members of the East Andover Community Club met with Margery Towne on Nov. 14. A short business meeting was conducted and reports read. Many cards had been sent to East Andover residents. Some mystery sisters were remembered. Plans were made for a Christmas luncheon on Dec. 12 at the home of President Barbara Meisner. At this meeting mystery sisters will be revealed and new names drawn for 2006. A hostess list will be compiled.

A very successful food auction was held. Every year a sum of money has been given to two local Sunday schools to be used to purchase Bibles.

A dessert was enjoyed at the Towne Home, known as the Cabin.

Richard Sullivan visited his daughter, Ellen Jones, and his three grandchildren in Norfolk, Va., recently.

Get well wishes to Joel Putnum, who underwent heart surgery at the Medical Center in Bangor. He returned home Nov. 17.

Two flocks of wild turkeys, about 15, come every day into East Andover. There are many other flocks in town.

Andrea Bretz Savitz, president of Andover Service Circle (ASC), was delighted to tell me of some new activities in the lives of a couple of the Circle's members. In addition to Evelyn Bodemer's fine charity work done for the support of research and resources for persons with cancer and persons with Alzheimer's disease, she has somehow found the time and fortitude to become a hospice volunteer for Androscoggin Home Health and Hospice Care. As such, Evelyn has received training and now visits a dying individual to render comfort through her presence. Further, member Jeanne Rosato, a Reiki master and registered professional nurse with a strong background in the treatment of persons with cancers, has become the first ever cancer care support nurse at Franklin Memorial Hospital.

Andrea also reminds us all of ASC's annual Holiday Dinner to be held on Monday, Dec. 5, in the Andover Town Hall. A social hour will start at 3:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 4:30 p.m. topped off with dessert. As in past years, this event is a gift to the community from ASC, and is open to all Andover residents who are disabled or are over 65 years of age. Each person attending is encouraged to bring a guest.

Lastly, if you are aware of anyone who should have received an invitation to the annual Holiday Dinner, but did not, please telephone chairperson Pat Meek at 392-2281. Pat hopes for a complete count of expected attendees during the coming week.

Have a Happy Thanksgiving. Enjoy the long weekend.

Newry

by Sylvia Harrington

On Nov. 10, Mel Cummings and Don Twitchell had company from Groton, Conn. Mel's daughter, Emily, along with her husband, Phillip Barbeau, and children, Hayley and Phillip, were here till Sunday. Phillip enjoys duck hunting and drove over to Madison to hunt with his dad, Mick. They hunted both early and again late in the day. Phillip got the only duck and left it for his dad to enjoy. Mel relayed that her brother, George F. Learned, Jr., who has been in ill health for many years, is recuperating at home in New Britain, Conn. He just spent four months in two hospitals, and is doing better.

The hunters haven't had the best of weather for getting out into the area woods. Upon checking with Bear River Trading Post I was told they had tagged 64 deer as of Saturday evening, the 19th. Leon Dunn got an eight-point buck on Thursday weighing in at 178 pounds. At this time John Connell has tagged the largest deer, a 12-point buck weighing in at 215 pounds.

Bear River Trading Post would like patrons to know they will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, except for the tagging of deer. Debbie and Doug would also like their customers to know that on the weekends they will now be serving chili. The two weeks following the regular hunting season is black powder hunting time.

WVSC is still going out at least one day of each weekend to clear trails. Anyone who would like to join them may call Leon at 824-3335 or Ed at 824-3589.

We were saddened to learn that Bill Wight passed away on Thursday, Nov. 17. Funeral services were held at the Greenleaf Funeral Home in Bethel on Monday, Nov. 21. Family and friends met at Bear River Grange Hall after the services. Our sympathies are extended to Sylvia and Bill's family. Bill's presence will be sadly missed in the community.

Hanover

It is time once again to license the favorite family member. Dog licenses are due by Dec. 31. When you go to the Town Office for the dog license, be sure to bring an up-to-date Rabies Certificate. Several local residents took their animals to a rabies clinic at the Andover Fire Station last Saturday. There is another clinic scheduled at the Bethel Fire Station on Dec. 3, between 2 and 4 p.m. Otherwise contact your veterinarian for an appointment. Also, if your dog has been spayed or neutered the veterinarian certificate is required to get the $6 rate. Dogs that are not spayed or neutered are $10. Late fees apply after Jan. 31, 2006.

The Hanover Town Office will be closed all day Thanksgiving Day and the Friday following. We hope everyone has an enjoyable holiday weekend.

The art display of Bob Lovejoy paintings at the Hanover Town Office has ended. Everyone who saw the display was very enthusiastic. We wish to express our appreciation to Judy Ray for allowing the sentimental display and her contributions of paintings to it.

Heavy rains last week took off most of the snow that remained from the week before. Streams and the river rose to higher-than-normal levels. Last Saturday the early morning temperature was 10 degrees. We do not recommend swimming at Howard Pond because the float has been pulled to shore for the winter.

Millie Jackson had an early Thanksgiving dinner with Lorie Olson in South Paris on Nov. 20. Chris and Cyndy Olson and family were there. Altogether there were 19 people that had dinner with Lorie and her family.

Jack and Tricia Chappie have a new snow machine for winter play time.

Peter Bean and Gina Dow visited Mary Bean with Mary's great-granddaughter, Emilea Bean-Wodka, on Nov. 20.

Mary Bean and Arthur Hertell attended the senior citizen dinner at Telstar High School on Nov. 20. This dinner was hosted by the National Honor Society students.

Margarite Johnson of North Carolina is visiting Nancy Kimball.

Dot Bartlett returned Nov. 19 from a visit to London, England, and Stockholm, Sweden.

I hope everyone has a good Thanksgiving. God Bless the Troops.

Judith Grover Tent 17 Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War met at Alice Hoyt's on Monday, Nov. 14, for a regular meeting. Eight members were present. The charter was draped in memory of Beatrice Farnum. It was voted to have a Christmas exchange of gifts and a tasting party at our Dec. 12 meeting. Flags and markers were discussed. It would be a help if people who have lost loved ones that were in the service and are buried in Woodstock-Bryant Pond cemeteries would let the Daughters know so we can be sure they have a marker and flag at

At the Historical Society meeting in November, Paul and Vicki Billings reported on the Lipizzaner Stallions they saw at the Cumberland Civic Center. The horses were rescued from Hitler by Gen.

George Patton. The society also decided to print a book on "Culture" by Curator Larry Billings at Grass Roots. It covers literature, art music, history, antiques, and religion. Jane Mills gave some old town reports to the society.

The December meeting will be at the Town Annex with a potluck supper at 6 p.m. and exchange of gifts and cards.

Curator Larry Billings is delighted his book on "Culture" is going to be printed. He has promoted "Culture" in the area for years. Ernestine Riley gave the society a theatrical program for the old Opera House. Alice Hoyt gave some old scrapbooks and photos. Much thanks.

West Paris

by Joyce Lamb

Winter with its cold and freezing weather is here. The plants on the sun porch are now inside. The begonias have been cut off and put in the cellar. The geraniums are still full of large blossoms so can live a little longer in the laundry room. I will cut them off a few at a time and take them to church on Sundays, for one of my jobs is to furnish fresh flowers each week. Hopefully all of the plants will survive the winter and bloom again next summer.

On Sunday, Nov. 27, Jennifer Wixon will be the guest speaker at the West Paris Universalist Church at 9 a.m. Jim Burke is the organist. A coffee hour follows.

There was a good attendance at the West Paris's 99th Chicken Pie Supper. Cooper Farms furnished the 50 pounds of potatoes and Don Demerest grew all the squash. Many fur-

LOOKING FOR A FRIEND

A children's book entitled "The Cat with the Question Mark Tail," by Greenwood resident D.C. Scherer, is now available at Books 'N Things in Bethel and other locations in the area. The book is based on Scherer's real life cat, Tigger, who lives with Scherer and her husband, Fred, on Twitchell Pond. Tigger is an indoor cat, Scherer said, and in the book she wants to go outside to make friends with the creatures she watches through the window. She is eventually able to escape, and tries to find an animal family with which she can live. But there is no room for the feline. What the cat learns in the end, said Scherer, "is that you can always go home." The water color illustrations, including the one shown here, are by J. Kintz, also of Greenwood. The book is Scherer's first, but she has two others in the works. She is also available to do book readings at elementary schools and libraries.

Earl and Pat Hart, Sarah Lynch and Zack rode to Massachusetts last weekend to visit Pat and Earl's son, Vic, and family. Vic has a new son, Owen. Sarah drove. They had a great time.

Zack has mastered his white, green, orange and recently his purple Karate belt. He received lessons in Lewiston. Zack is the son of Sarah and Phil Lynch and is in the first grade at Sabattus Grammar School.

Making honors at TMS is Jonah Thurlow. Making high honors is Ciara Nadeau. At THS are Bailey Davis and Chea Davis, Patrick Gallagher and Caitlin Shimamura.

Patrice Dunn has returned to California after spending two weeks with her parents, James and Evelyn Dunn.

Claribel Poland is improving and doing quite well after her recent sickness.

My sister, Dotte Critser, Tempe, Ariz., called and is feeling more like herself all the time. They changed her medicine and it seems to be helping. We keep in touch by phone regularly.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society reports that they have decided to print a book on "Culture" by Curator Billings, who has had a deep interest in the subject for years.

Call me with your Thanksgiving news, I will be glad to hear from you, thanks.

Locke Mills

It seems as if I am always in a hurry and in being so I do not proof-read my column thoroughly enough. That being said, I have not yet had the ability to raise the dead in real life but I sure can in my column; it is Russell "Joe" Yates that is the brother Lorene Mills' mother, Laura Hutchins, is staying with, not Bryce, who, unfortunately, died some time ago. Ada Cummings is in Norway Rehab, not the Veterans' Home, and Norway Rehab is obviously in Norway not in South Paris. Then perhaps it would have been clearer when mentioning studying Romans, Chapters 1 and 2, if I were to say that most of it deals in how not to live rather than how to live. I knew what I meant but I am not sure if anyone else would. I once took a course in communicating and one of the things I gleaned from that is that "what you are saying may not be what someone else is hearing" and it is true of the written word also.

Monday afternoon, I helped Debbie Brown wrap some of her homemade soaps and then stayed for supper. I have fun doing that and Debbie always has good food so I enjoyed that also.

Then on Wednesday afternoon I went with Debbie Brown, to see her mother, Ada Cummings, which is when I found out I had her in the wrong place. I could not figure out why Debbie was on the wrong road to go to the Veterans' Home but I did not say anything figuring maybe she needed to go somewhere else first. So I was a bit surprised to find us at Norway Rehab. I was also surprised to see Helen Farrar in the room next to Ada. She seems to be doing well.

After the visit Debbie and I headed out to church in Rumford Center where I am presently teaching a course in discipleship on Wednesday evenings. I am having fun and I hope everyone else is, too.

I was just talking with Debbie and she says her mother is expected to come home on Nov. 18, just in time for the holidays. Now the problem will be to keep her from overdoing. Ada does not let any grass grow under her feet.

I have gorgeous Christmas cacti blooming in various shades. I love the cacti blooms; I just wish they lasted longer. They had a beautiful one blooming in the dining room at the Norway Rehab, too. I think the biggest one I ever saw was one Ersel Murphy had or has. It was so large she wheeled it around in a baby stroller or some such contraption.

I was sorry to read in the paper of the deaths of Bob Mills, Daisy LeClair, and Bob Mason. They will all be missed, I am sure.

I am hoping to get to church Saturday morning to help fill Thanksgiving boxes.

It is always a fun thing to do and the church plans to give out more than 45 boxes this year.

Hopefully, that will make some folks' Thanksgiving holiday more enjoyable.

There is a great need of food these days as people struggle to meet the rising energy costs. There is often not room in the budget for both food and fuel.

Albany

by Sheila Dyke

Greetings and hello from Albany Township. These past couple of weeks have seen some snow in our part of Maine.

Everyone is still gathering wood for the coming winter months, as is evidenced by the sounds of chainsaws singing away as they cut into the logs. Nothing beats the heat that comes from a wood fire. Oil is nice and convenient, but just not as penetrating as wood.

We hope that everyone has a wonderful Thanksgiving on Thursday, with friends and family near, and wonderful fellowship. Whether you have the traditional turkey dinner, or go out for some Chinese food, we hope that you all enjoy your day together. We are thankful for our family and friends, and all that God has provided to us.

Best wishes for a happy and safe week. God Bless and Keep.

By the time you read this it will be Thanksgiving. Hope yours is great. We plan on having a group of friends join us in celebrating. The transfer stations will be closed so neither of us has to work.

I have a sad bit of news to report. Last week, Thursday, the 17th, Willard Wight of Newry, a former selectman and part of Windy Valley Snowmobile Club, as well as the Fire Department, Grange, American Legion, Bethel Historical Society and the Newry Community Church, died at Ledgeview Living Center. His wife, Sylvia, survives him. She is currently at Ledgeview Living Center. Bill was the father of Gretchen Strauss (William Strauss) of Waterford. He is also survived by two sons, Stephen W. Wight and his wife Marlene of Old Town, David L. Wight and his wife Anne of Greenbush and one brother, Owen Wight of Newry and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren. He will be missed by all.

There is a community Thanksgiving Dinner at North Waterford Congregational Church. All are invited. For more information, please call Rev. Frobig at 693-6461.

Friday, the 25th, is Open Mic Night at the First Universalist Church in Norway. All performers are invited. Donations of non-perishable food will be accepted for Oxford Hills food pantry. FMI: call Heather at 995-4505.

With the holiday season upon us, it is the time to start thinking about our fellow community members. This may be a hard season for many. Fortunately, it has been a mild winter, so far, but they are predicting snow for Thanksgiving.

That is all for this week. Have a great holiday and drive safely.

From the Bethel Lions Club

The Bethel Lions held a workshop on Nov. 16 at the Methodist Church on Main Street. We put together 12 fruit baskets for former residents of Bethel, who now reside at Ledgeview Living Center. Plans were made to deliver the fruit baskets the next day.

Lions from the Harrison Club who were present were Bob and Jan Swett, and Clyde and Martha Nason. From the Bethel Club, Ed and Gert Friel, and Eldon Greenleaf stopped by to drop off some forms and information, also some refreshments.

Also present were three prospective members, Joe and Lynn Arizzi, and Becky Morin. David Bartlett stopped by to drop off some fruit.

Plans were made for our Christmas Party. There was no meeting on Nov. 22, with Thanksgiving only two days later.

From the Oxford County Republicans

More than sixty Oxford County Republicans gathered on Nov. 15 at the Norway Congregational Church to choose a nominee who will be officially recommended to Governor Baldacci for appointment to serve out the term of Oxford County District Three Commissioner Albert "Jim" Carey, who recently resigned due to ill health.

Forty-four delegates and their proxies were determined eligible to vote during the caucus, which followed a ham dinner and the business meeting.

Only official delegates elected at town caucuses in 2004 or their representatives (proxies) were eligible to participate in the selection process.

Under the law, Carey, a Republican, must be succeeded by a member of the same political party. Four candidates for the post appeared including Jeffrey Fagan, Paris; Raymond Garnett, Paris; Caldwell Jackson, Oxford; Dennis Sanborn, Oxford.

After a second vote, businessman Jeffrey Fagan was declared the winner following the first vote which ended in a tie between Fagan and Caldwell Jackson. Fagan's name will now be submitted to the governor for appointment. The term will expire at the end of 2006 and Fagan is expected to seek election in the Republican primary in June.

During the business meeting, Diane Jackson was selected by vote of the committee to serve as Oxford County's member on the Platform Committee.

Special guests for the evening were College Republican Chairman Nate Walton of Bates College in Lewiston and Dan Schubert of Bowdoin College in Brunswick, former chairman of the Maine College Republicans and currently secretary of the National College Republicans.

Schubert announced his candidacy for vice chairman of the Maine Republican Party, which will be decided in August on Nov. 19.

Chairman Jones also announced that the next meeting would be held on Dec. 13 in Dixfield at the Congregational Church. State Senator Chandler Woodcock (R-Farmington), who is running for the Republican nomination for governor, will be the featured speaker.

From the Oxford County Democrats

The Oxford County Democrats met on Nov. 17 at Telstar Regional High School in Bethel for a potluck supper and business meeting.

County Chairperson Cathy Newell highlighted the activities the past months, including events attended by Gov. John Baldacci, Congressman Mike Michaud, and Attorney General Steve Rowe, as well as the fairs and the Business Expos in Rumford and South Paris. She thanked all who assisted with the busy schedule of events.

Treasurer Mike Broderick reported on the committee's financial status and plans for HAPPY THANKSGIVING—Sunday River furthered the tradition of giving during their opening weekend by giving free Thanksgiving turkeys to all staff Friday. Here, Marvin Collins, vice president of mountain operations hands out a bird. Guests who brought at least three cans of food were able to save money on their lift ticket while helping a worthy cause. The Tin Mountain Roundup is an event staged at ski areas across Maine with help from the Ski Maine Association. This year's event saw more than 600 people donate over 2,000 cans of food to the Bethel Food Pantry. "Sunday River's Roundup just about doubled the amount of food we have on hand," said Erika Penczer, a volunteer for the Bethel Food Pantry. "We really appreciate the generosity of the community in keeping the pantry stocked for those who need it. The Holidays are a busy time for us, but the need is really year-round." Those looking to donate to the pantry are urged to call Penczer at 824-7639. Residents of SAD44 seeking assistance from the pantry should call the Bethel Town Office at 824-2669.

the year ahead. Broderick, who chairs the Maine Democratic Party's Platform Committee, described the work to date and the schedule of meetings which will precede the 2006 Convention set for June 2 and 3 in Augusta.

Wayne Gallant of Rumford, currently chief of police in Wilton, announced his candidacy for sheriff in the 2006 election.

Oxford County Register of Deeds Jane Rich announced her candidacy for re-election. Diane Russell gave a report on the recent Maine Won't Discriminate campaign in Oxford County, chaired by Mike Newsum of South Paris. Torvic Vadarmis of Bangor, field director for the Maine Democrats in the region including Oxford County, spoke about plans for the 2006 caucus meetings which will be held on Sunday, Feb. 26. Caucus convenors have been secured for most Oxford County towns and plans are in the works for events which will complete the business of organizing town committees for the next two years and provide attendees with an opportunity for discussion of issues.

Susan Moore of Congressman Michaud's staff brought greetings from Congressman Michaud who will be attending the Oxford County Committee's Holiday Party and Supper on Dec. 15 at the Rumford Eagles Hall.

For information about the Oxford County Democrats, visit www.oxforddems.org or <http://www.oxforddems.org> or call 875-2116.

From the

Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

In October, a film crew from Maine Public Broadcasting was in Bethel to tape an episode of the popular show "Made in Maine" for presentation in November. Host Lou McNally visited the Smithsonian Institution's barn exhibit at the Bethel Historical Society and interviewed Society Executive Director Stan Howe about the exhibit and Maine barns. The half-hour program dealt with barns and barn specialists in other locations, including Brooklin and Harrison, but began in Bethel with the exhibit and ended in Stan Howe's barn next door to the Dr. Mason barn. The show aired on Nov. 17 and 19 and will have one more airing on Nov. 28 at 10 p.m. on Channel 10.

Earlier this year, Oxford

County celebrated its bicentennial of incorporation. During that time, the Bethel Historical Society enlisted two specialists to give lectures on the history of the County. These included Larry Glatz, who served as chair of the celebration, discussing the history of the Oxford Bear as a proud symbol of the county and Jean Hankins, Ph. D., of the Otisfield Historical Society, making a presentation on some myths about the County's settlement. These have now been published as scholarly essays in the latest issue of Maine Historical Society's quarterly "Maine History." Also appearing in this issue is an article by Bethel Historical Society Executive Director Stanley R. Howe on the seven men who were born in or were from Oxford County who served as governors or acting governors of the state. These included Abion Keith Parris (born in Hebron, served from Paris), Enoch Lincoln (lived in Fryeburg and Paris), John W. Dana (born in Fryeburg), Hannibal Hamlin (born in Paris), Sidney Perham (born in Woodstock and attended Gould Academy), Sebastian Streeter Marble (born in Dixfield), and Edmund S. Muskie (born in Rumford). Also accompanying the biographical sketches are images of each governor.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

THE GOOD INSPECTOR

Structural inspection contingencies are a common feature of offers. A buyer is allowed a certain period of time to have an expert look over the home - the structure, plumbing, wiring, roof, and appliances so they will have a good idea of what they are getting into.

How do you find the right inspector? Look for an expert on pre-purchase home inspections, not simply a renovation contractor or a friend who can tell copper from galvanized pipes. There are specialists in most cities, or you can obtain a list from a Realtor. Ask for recommendations from friends who have recently purchased homes. Most inspectors have some background in building or engineering and have had additional training related specifically to residences. Call several companies and ask about the background and training of the staff as well as their rates.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, contact Cindy Hiebert at Mahoosuc Realty, 207-824-2771

KATHLEEN MCALLISTER
Kathleen Clark McAllister, 93, of Bryant Pond, died Nov. 17, 2005 at Stephens Memorial Hospital. She had been a resident at Ledgeview Living Center for several years.

She was born April 15, 1912 in Pembroke, the daughter of the late William Clark and Gertrude Robinson Clark. Kathleen married Russell C. McAllister in 1951; he died in 1984.

She was very active in many organizations including Franklin Grange, American Legion Auxiliary in Locke Mills, Daughters of Veterans, Pythian Sisters State Temple 1, past matron and long-time secretary of Jefferson Chapter 89 O.E.S. of Bryant Pond, past trustee of Whitman Memorial Library and in past year an active member of the Republican Party. She loved working in the polls on Election Day.

She took painting lessons and loved to paint. She also loved to travel and visit the different organizations she belonged to.

Kathleen was noted for her uncanny ability to remember the birth dates of the many family members.

She worked for many years at Stowell's Mill and Mann's Mill in Bryant Pond and spent some time at MacKillop's Store in Bryant Pond and McKeen's Orchards in West Paris. She was also a bookkeeper for her husband's plumbing and heating business, R. C. McAllister.

Kathleen is survived by two daughters, Beverly Tuttle of Bethel and Margie Varney of Greenville, S.C.; two sons, Peter Cox of Woodbine, Kan., and Charles McAllister of South Paris; 18 grandchildren; 43 great-grandchildren; and 13 great-great-grandchildren; as well as a good friend and roommate, Emily Mae Dubois of Ledgeview Living Center. She was predeceased by her first husband, Burton Cox, and her second husband, Russell McAllister; two daughters, Norma Burns and Gwendolyn Saunders; two brothers, Raymond and Paul Clark; six sisters, Evelyn Cushing, Madeline Rice, Iva Huntley, Marther Morrison, Gertrude Leighton and Lois Freeto; three grandchildren, Jay Cox, Michael Cox and Sandra McAllister.

Funeral services were held at the Andrews Funeral Home, South Woodstock, on Sunday, Nov. 20, with Pastor Lloyd Waterhouse officiating. Burial followed in the Lakeside Cemetery, Bryant Pond. Memorials in her memory are requested to the Ledgeview Living Center Activities Fund, 141 Bethel Road, West Paris, ME 04289.
